PROJECTS – GitHub: https://github.com/koool71

Photo Album Website

For 485 created a photo album site that used mysql and python flask for the backend. Users can upload and edit their own albums. Python/flask, mysql, html, and css were all used in this project

Summer of Android

Self-taught the ins and outs of Android Studio

Traveling Salesmen

Efficiently solved the TP problem, utilizing complex heuristics to accurately estimate enormous data sets (tens of thousands of nodes). (C++)

Stock Market

Built a working stock market program using priority queues to process trades in real time, following specific rules and behaviors based on all previous orders processed within the market. (C++)

Personal Website

Built my own website on the python/flask framework using mysql to handle persistent data. My first attempt at building a website from scratch from the backend to frontend design to act as an introduction website to me. Looking to launch by Oct 7th current build on my github
